

Rescue Hopes Fade 28 Feared Dead In Sunken Tower

NEW YORK (AP) — A rescue destroyer reported tappings and a sound like a human voice Monday from the sunken hulk of a storm-wrecked Texas tower. But the signals faded and died, even as a dramatic hope arose that survivors were clinging precariously to life beneath the sullen North Atlantic.

In late afternoon, Naval Rear Adm. Allan Shinn, talking from the scene by radio-telephone to the Associated Press, said: "We have heard no tapping noises within the last hour. They could be the sound of wreckage scraping against the bottom. Right now the prospects are not good at all. The water is very cold and the air supply—the men were trapped in an air pocket—may be gone."

Coded Message

Flagger rescue efforts sprang back into high gear at the electrifying hint that some of the 28 missing towermen might still be alive, entombed like submariners of bygone sea crises.

The commander of the Navy destroyer McCaffery had reported on the tappings. "The response made was a kind of coded message that could come only from men."

Heavy salvage and diving equipment was dispatched to the scene. But Shinn reported it probably would not be useable before Tuesday morning and added: "I am very pessimistic that anyone can be recovered."

Hope previously had been all but abandoned for the 28 aboard the six-story-high radar sentinel that toppled beneath a raging gale Sunday night and sank to a depth of 100 feet some 10 miles southeast of New York. Only one body had been recovered, however.

Then, in mid-morning, 14 hours after the tower vanished beneath the sea, Coast Guard headquarters here was advised from the scene: "At 10:34 a.m. McCaffery at Texas Tower heard tapping noises on sonar. There exchanged tapping signals."

"Now was heard what may be human voice over sonar."

"Definite possibility survivors trapped in tower structure. Structure is entirely below surface depth. Request all possible salvage assistance earliest."

Like a capsized ship, the tower presumably could sustain human life as long as there were air pockets in her enclosed decks and cabins.

Shinn reported about 3:45 p.m. EST-nearly 18 hours after the storm-battered tower had sunk—that noises heard from the wreckage "are weaker and more random."

Shinn estimated the tower had sunk on its side and that the top-most part is 100 feet below the surface.

The admiral reported that at about 3:45 p.m. two of the skin divers located one of the three supports for the tower but it was no longer attached to the structure.

"We have heard no tapping noises within the past hour," he said. "They could be the sound of wreckage scraping against the bottom."

"Right now the prospects are not good at all. The water is very cold, and the air supply—if the men were trapped in an air pocket—may be gone."

The McCaffery was one of a fleet of Navy and Coast Guard rescue vessels criss-crossing the area, and probing beneath the surface with sonar—an underwater sound-detection system. The surface force was led by the aircraft carrier Wasp, which had sped from 80 miles away at word of the tower's collapse.

The 67-foot tower rested on a tripod embedded in the ocean bottom some 180 feet beneath the surface. It was one of three that stand guard along the coast against any potential of enemy submarine, aircraft or missile attack.

The ill-fated tower was listed as No. 4—although only two others have been completed. Its above-surface structure was not unlike a ship's—with two enclosed decks, containing recreation hall, gymnasium, swimming pool, infirmary, dining areas and cabins for personnel. A top tower was three radar cupolas.

Rocket Weapons High In Planning

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rocket weapons—for massive attack and for defense—had high position in the $42.9-billion military budget handed down to Congress Monday by departing President Eisenhower.

Eisenhower's recommendation for the coming fiscal year starting July 1 calls for outlays $1.4 billion bigger than this year. It is the largest defense request since World War II, except for one year during the Korean War.

The incoming administration of President-elect John F. Kennedy may make substantial changes in the Eisenhower budget proposals.

Eisenhower's budget proposes no substantial alterations in the defense program of the current fiscal year. The manpower total is unchanged at 2,492,900. There are few actual new weapons, although some arms, like the missiles, are now flowing into the nation's arsenal in quantities.

Missiles account, in part, for the $1.4-billion increase over the present budget.

Without referring directly to the running debate over whether the United States lags, is even or is ahead in the missile race with the Soviet Union, Eisenhower said in his budget message:

"The advent of the nuclear-armed intercontinental ballistic missiles in the hands of a potential adversary has confronted this nation with a problem entirely new to its experience. . . . Accordingly, this budget will continue the major effort under way during the last few years to increase the protection of our forces from surprise attack."

Former Associate Judge Shupp Dies

FORMER Monroe County Associate Judge Homer A. Shupp, 73, of Effort, died in Monroe County General Hospital last night. He had been ill two weeks.

A lifelong resident of the county, Mr. Shupp had been active in many organizations and activities during his lifetime.

He stepped down from the county bench Sept. 1, 1959 after nearly 24 years of service.

Mr. Shupp was first elected to the associate judgeship in 1935. He took office in 1936, serving seven and a half years under the late Judge Samuel Shull. The remainder of his four six-year terms were under Judge Fred W. Davis.

A son of the late Simon and Cornelia Arnold Shupp, he was born in Effort and spent his entire life there. He was married to the former Ella M. Serfass, of Gilbert, whose father, T. H. Serfass, at one time served as county superintendent of schools.

Shupp served a number of years on the School Board in Chestnut Hill Township. It was during this time that the board closed a number of one-room schools in the township and consolidated them in the new school at Brodheadville.

His father owned and operated a wagon-spoke factory at Effort for many years. This was later abandoned when the automobile and truck became common-place and put the wagon industry on the decline, here and elsewhere.

Mr. Shupp once operated the family farm, where he had planted as many as 700 bushels of potatoes a year and about 10 years ago he retired from farming.

Mr. Shupp was a member of Salem Lutheran Church, and Sunday School, Gilbert. He had served on the Church Council and choir for more than 50 years. He was also a 50 year member of Barger Lodge 325, F. & A.M. Stroudsburg.

He is survived by his widow, at home; two sons, Bertine Shupp, Bethlehem; Gordon Shupp, Effort, and four grandsons.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 2 p.m. in the Kresge Funeral Home, Brodheadville, with Rev. John Kline officiating. Interment will be in Gilbert Cemetery.

Friends and relatives may call at the funeral home Thursday after 7 p.m.

Presents Balanced Budget

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower bequeathed to the nation and the Kennedy administration Monday a record peacetime budget, precariously balanced at $81 billion, and a proposal for creating a deputy president or prime minister.

As usual, well over half the budget—$8 cents of every dollar or a total of $47,392,000,000—is for national security. For a change, though, ideas overshadowed figures in a budget that peers ahead with optimism.

Eisenhower said serious attention should be given to providing in the presidential office an official out-ranking even Cabinet members. This "first secretary of the government" would help formulate security policies, coordinate international programs and represent the chief executive at meetings with high foreign officials.

Speaking from eight years of experience, Eisenhower said the president's executive office also needs a general manager.

But in deference to John F. Kennedy, who will move into the White House just four days from now, the outgoing chief executive refrained from submitting three new ideas to Congress in the form of actual legislative proposals.

Eisenhower also suggested creation of a government department of transportation in his eighth and last budget message to Congress.

BUDGET AT GLANCE
For fiscal year ending June 30:
1961	1962
Income	$79,021,000,000	$82,333,000,000
Expenses	$78,815,000,000	$80,865,000,000
Surplus	$206,000,000	$1,468,000,000
National debt at year's end:
	$24,900,000,000	$23,400,000,000

last budget message to Congress—a message which took what he termed "a justifiably optimistic view as to the course of our economy."

How far the retiring chief executive's proposals will get is questionable. Kennedy's aides say he intends to hold down the number of top White House jobs to about half the present total. And Kennedy is understood to have no great interest in establishing any new government department other than one for urban affairs.

Equally questionable are prospects for balanced budgets Eisenhower predicts for the present 1961 fiscal year ending June 30 and the next fiscal year starting July 1. The forecasts rest on various assumptions, some of them shaky, Kennedy advisers question their accuracy.

But Eisenhower displayed no uncertainty or lack of confidence in his $81-billion budget message. "For the fiscal year 1962," he told Congress, "I send you budget and legislative proposals which will meet the essential domestic needs of the nation, provide for the national defense, and at the same time preserve the integrity and strength of our federal government's finances."

"With this budget, I leave to the new administration and the Congress a progressive and workable financial plan which recognizes national priorities and which reflects my confidence in the strength of our economy now and in the years to come."

In some respects, of course, this Eisenhower budget is just a gesture, because Kennedy will be taking over and undoubtedly will have different thoughts on what constitutes a progressive and workable plan.

Eisenhower said most of his legislative proposals are old ones, but they still ought to be enacted. In total and in its parts, he said, his budget "embodies a sensible and forward-looking plan of action for the government."

He said it will increase the nation's military power, expand efforts to conquer space, bolster the economy and domestic well-being, help less-developed countries, mark up some savings—and continue present tax rates.

Lawrence Budget Proposes $991 Million Expenditures

Almost Half Of Budget For Education

HARRISBURG (AP) — Public education expenditures of $469,053,500 were proposed Monday by Gov. Lawrence for the 1961-62 fiscal year.

It represents almost half—47.4 per cent—of the total budget, but in a very real sense it was merely a paper recommendation.

The allocation for public education is expected to undergo drastic revision when Lawrence's Committee on Education makes its recommendations in March, based on a year-long study of the schools from kindergarten through college.

Federal Aid

Lawrence also expressed the opinion Pennsylvania "will obtain an appreciable amount of federal assistance," based on anticipated action in this field by the incoming administration of President-elect John F. Kennedy.

The education budget submitted by Lawrence includes proposed new spending — to the tune of $500,000 — for the promotion of library services around the state, including training of librarians. This was one of the programs outlined for action by the legislature when the governor delivered his "State of the Commonwealth" message two weeks ago. It is expected to stand regardless of any action by the study committee.

One significant omission in the budget was payment for closed schools.

The administration tried to eliminate this 50-year old subsidy in 1959, but the proposal never got out of committee in the Democratic-controlled House. The state paid $4.9 million for this purpose in 1959-61.

Closing Schools

Under this program, designed to encourage the closing of one-room and similar outdated school buildings, a school district is paid $200 a year for each such building it puts out of service. The subsidy is continuous.

The budget appropriates $13,750,995 for the 14 state colleges. This is based on $30 per pupil enrolled in the current school year.

Another $36,739,837 is appropriated for the state-aided universities, with Penn State getting the lion's share, about $15.5 million.

The universities of Pennsylvania, Pittsburgh and Temple split another $13 million, leaving the remaining $5 million to be spread among 20 colleges, training schools and institutions.

However, the study committee is expected to make new recommendations in spending for higher education, including some kind of junior college system.

Senate Unit Approves Day For Cabinet

WASHINGTON (AP) — J. Edward Day, Los Angeles, insurance executive, won Senate committee approval Monday for appointment as postmaster general in the Kennedy administration.

Day, 46, was the eighth of President-elect John F. Kennedy's 10 Cabinet selections to receive informal endorsement in advance. The actual nominations cannot be submitted until after Kennedy takes the oath of office Friday noon.

No Senate committee action has been taken on appointments of Robert S. McNamara for secretary of defense, and Luther H. Hodges for secretary of commerce.

The Senate Post Office Committee also gave unanimous approval to the selection of H. W. Bravley as deputy postmaster general. Bravley comes from Chester, S. C.

Day, a lawyer who once served as Illinois insurance commissioner under former Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, told the committee that "controlling and reducing" the Post Office Department deficit will be a top priority item in the new administration.

Speedup Of Shortway Requested By Governor

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Lawrence Administration Monday proposed a two-cent increase in the state's five-cents-a-gallon gasoline tax.

The proposed boost was the cornerstone of a $475 million highway budget for 1961-62.

The administration called for a speed-up on five federal interstate road projects, including the Keystone Shortway, and for a modernization of 20,000 miles of rural roads.

In delivering his budget message before a joint Senate and House session, the governor said a balanced highways budget was impossible without additional taxation.

The only other alternative, he added, would be "to accept deterioration in our highways system or call back to state uses the money which now goes to our . . . communities from the gasoline tax."

He described his road budget as one "planned to move us forward into the greatest era of highway betterment, improvement and construction which this state has ever known."

Lawrence said the state expected to spend $350,392,419 out of its own pocket and another $124,800,000 from the federal government.

"Under our present schedule of gasoline taxes and licenses, the projected (state) revenue would be only $275,200,000 — which is $75,192,419 short of the necessary goal."

"I am urging the legislature to increase the tax on gasoline by two cents per gallon in order to provide the money necessary to bring the highways budget into balance."

The additional two cents would yield an estimated $74.4 million, of which $7.4 million would be given over to municipalities to spend on their own road building and maintenance plans.

Lawrence also proposed that the present borrowing power of the State Highway and Bridge Authority be increased by $300 million, to $420 million, to help speed up work on such projects as the Anthracite Expressway from Scranton to Harrisburg, The Cumberland Valley Freeway from Harrisburg to Hagerstown (Md.), the Delaware Expressway from Morrisville through Philadelphia, the Keystone Shortway from Sharon to Stroudsburg and the Erie-West Virginia Freeway (sometimes referred to as the Pittsburgh-Erie Freeway).

This spending out of highway and bridge bonds Lawrence viewed as short-term borrowing against anticipated future federal grants.

"The process will be similar to the temporary construction loan which a builder negotiates before his final mortgage financing is paid to him," Lawrence added.

Out of the regular highway budget, Lawrence proposed $79.9 million for rural and feeder roads, and $46.3 million for other roads.

"But I must emphasize such a program, just as we cannot undertake an effective reconstruction and betterment program for the 20,000 miles of rural and feeder roads unless the legislature is willing to pass a tax measure that will provide the funds."

Atomic Energy Chairman Named

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Glenn T. Seaborg, chancellor of the University of California and a Nobel prize winner in chemistry, was named chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission Monday.

President-elect John F. Kennedy chose the scientist to succeed a Republican businessman, John A. McCone.

Lawrence said his tax program seemed more preferable than new levies against either businesses or individuals.

"We all know that temporary taxes—such as might be levied to liquidate the deficit—have a habit of remaining in force well after the original basis for the levy has disappeared," he said.

"Both parties—Democrats and Republicans alike—have cooperated in recent years to establish a tax climate in Pennsylvania which is favorable to economic growth. We hope to continue the tax policies which have given us a balanced program . . ."

The budget proposed increases to $8 million each in Pennsylvania's participation in urban renewal and the rate of contribution to the state industrial development authority.

A 10 per cent increase in appropriations for mental hospitals reflected the administration's interest in this field.

Gas Tax Hike Only Increase Sought Now

HARRISBURG (AP)—A general fund budget proposing over-all expenditures of $991,126,372 in the 13-month fiscal period starting next June 1 was laid before the General Assembly Monday by the Lawrence administration.

Aside from a two-cent increase in gasoline taxes to finance an expanded highway program, Gov. David L. Lawrence recommended only a modest reshuffling of the existing tax structure to finance state government in the 1961-62 period.

Tax Pre-Payment

His proposals included a 5 per cent across-the-board pay raise for state employees.

To overcome an anticipated $82 million deficit in the current biennial budget, Lawrence asked the lawmakers to step up the collection of certain business taxes.

The plan would require prepayment of 30 per cent of such taxes prior to the new fiscal period June 1. It would apply to the corporate net income tax, the tax on bank shares, the utilities gross receipts taxes and the tax on foreign life insurance companies.

The new budget, first ever submitted on an annual basis, compares with 1959-61 biennial appropriations of approximately $1.8 billion. The state's financial operations were put on an annual, rather than two-year basis, by vote of the people in 1959.

Another precedent, the state is adopting a new fiscal period to run from July 1 to June 30 to conform with federal practice, rather than the present June 1 to May 31.

To accomplish this changeover, the first annual budget was set up on a 13-month basis, to run from June 1 of this year to June 30, 1962.

$30 Million Shy

Forecastable revenues will be shy by about $30 million in financing the $991 million in proposed appropriations. Gov. Lawrence proposed to close the gap by:

1. Eliminating the 2 per cent commission paid to merchants for collection of the 4 per cent consumers' sales tax. (Revenue estimated at $8 million).

2. Reduce the commission for affixing tax stamps on cigarettes from the present 4 per cent to one and half per cent ($2.5 million).

3. Extension of the 8 mill tax on bank shares to savings and loan and building and loan associations ($4 million).

4. Bring Pennsylvania companies under the 2 per cent tax now levied on premiums of out-of-state life insurance companies.

A theme of urgency was expounded throughout the 6,000-word message delivered to a joint meeting of the House and Senate. It was Lawrence's second appearance before the lawmakers since the 145th session convened on Jan. 3.

On the matter of setting up the prepayment of business taxes, the governor said:

"The important thing is time. If this is to be done, it must be done quickly. Appropriate legislation will be promptly submitted. To be effective, it must reach the governor's desk on or about March 1."

Lawrence said his tax program seemed more preferable than new levies against either businesses or individuals.

"We all know that temporary taxes—such as might be levied to liquidate the deficit—have a habit of remaining in force well after the original basis for the levy has disappeared," he said.

"Both parties—Democrats and Republicans alike—have cooperated in recent years to establish a tax climate in Pennsylvania which is favorable to economic growth. We hope to continue the tax policies which have given us a balanced program . . ."

The budget proposed increases to $8 million each in Pennsylvania's participation in urban renewal and the rate of contribution to the state industrial development authority.

A 10 per cent increase in appropriations for mental hospitals reflected the administration's interest in this field.

Turnaway Crowds For Inauguration

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats gleefully rubbed hands Monday night over a happy headline:

A million-dollar inauguration retards a Democrat to the White House Friday, and there isn't a ticket left to meet a deluge of demands.

And Republicans are going to start trekking out of town with chins up, after a sort of consolation and good-bye party Monday night. They called it a "Transition Ball" in honor of the top echelons of the departing Eisenhower administration. They counted on a turnout of 1,500, but not President Eisenhower.

The man who will be president until Friday tolled Monday in a barren office. The books, the pictures, the knickknacks are gone—packed and ready for carting to Eisenhower's home at Gettysburg, Pa.

For the Democrats, every festive nonpolitical event of the inauguration is assured a turnaway crowd—a concert the night before, the ceremony Friday noon at which John F. Kennedy takes the presidential oath, the great parade afterward along Pennsylvania Avenue, and a three-day inaugural ball that night.

The million dollars in expenses will be more than paid. Some cash will be left over for charity and for a "kitty" to put the next inaugural committee in business four years from now. This is unheard of, this year's committee says.

At the moment, the only slightly sour financial note involves the one big political affair of a gay, busy, inaugural week. That is Thursday night's gala, for which the sponsors said "a few seats are left." Understandably, there are some left because it takes a $100 contribution to Democratic coffers to get one, and a cool $10,000 to buy a box.

The Democratic National Committee is staging the two-hour extravaganza, with the help of producers Frank Sinatra and Peter Lawford, Kennedy's brother-in-law. It will bring performing stars of the stage, screen and TV to the National Guard Armory, along with thousands of the party faithful.

U.S. Prohibits Travel Of Americans To Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States Monday banned travel by Americans to Cuba because it can no longer protect U.S. citizens there.

The only exception to the travel embargo will be persons whose visits to Cuba the State Department decides are "in the best interests of the United States."

This special permission will be given to newsmen and businessmen who already have established business interests in Cuba.

Cuba thus joins four Communist countries labeled off limits to Americans. They are Red China, Albania, North Korea and North Viet Nam. Like Cuba, they have no diplomatic relations with the United States.

Monday's U.S. action, announced by the State Department, is a follow-up to President Eisenhower's Jan. 3 move cutting diplo-

There now are no U.S. diplomats in Cuba to look after American interests there. The department noted that Castro authorities have manhandled several U.S. citizens since Jan. 3.

Actually, the travel ban has little impact now because American tourists have long since cut down on their visits to the once popular Caribbean island.

Before Castro's anti-Yankee campaign discouraged U.S. visitors, tens of thousands of Americans spent up to $90 million there annually.

State Department press officer Lincoln White said that since Jan. 3 only 63 Americans have gone to Havana from the main U.S. exit point, Miami. Nearly all had business there.

Tulsa Choir 'Worked' For E-burg Show

SCHOOL is back in swing for 41 worn-out University of Tulsa Modern Choir members. The students are recuperating from colds and laryngitis after a week of 8-hour-a-day rehearsals.

"Taking part of its Christmas vacation to rehearse, the choir is back from homes in all parts of the Southwest," Arthur Hestwood, director of the choir, said.

"The choir members have put in lots of hours to present a first-class program as in the past," he disclosed.

Hestwood is a graduate of Northwestern University in Chicago. Before coming to Tulsa University in 1947, he was a member of Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians. He was also a member of the RCA Victor Chorus and the Robert Shaw Chorus.

The choir will appear at East Stroudsburg High School auditorium, Sunday, Jan. 29, to perform for the Thomas L. Waring Scholarship Fund.

The memorial concert to the late Mr. Waring is under the sponsorship of the Varsity "E" Club of East Stroudsburg. Paul Lloyd is general chairman.

Tickets are now on sale in the two boroughs, namely, Lloyd's Sporting Goods Store, Counterman's Drug Store, Kresge's Drug Store, and City Cut Rate, East Stroudsburg. In Stroudsburg, tickets may be purchased at E. A. Bell Insurance Co., Community Jewelers, Town Tavern, and Rea and Derick Drug Store.

The first half of the program is a condensed version of Mendelssohn's "Elijah." All solo parts and some recitations are sung by the men's chorus. The second half of this year's show is a staged production based on Broadway shows by different composers with specialty numbers.

The shows included in the program are "Showboat," "Porgy and Bess," "Kiss Me Kate," and "Oklahoma!"

One of the specialty numbers on the show is a medley of Gilbert and Sullivan numbers with special lyrics about the show written by Dr. Baumont Bruehl, head of the speech department at the University of Tulsa.

Also included are two selections from a suite for piano solo with men's chorus entitled, "I'll Wait for My Love" by the late Tom Waring. The piano solo will be played by Richard Chronister, chairman of the Piano Pedagogy Department at the University.

Chronister, once an accompanist for the Fred Waring Music Workshop, was a close friend of Tom Waring, as was Hestwood.

Chronister is also music arranger and co-ordinator of staging for the choir.

Methodists Hear Of Africa Changes

BUCK HILL FALLS — "Greater changes of long-reaching consequences took place on the continent of Africa during the past decade than during any similar period on any other continent since the beginning of recorded history," Rev. Dr. C. Melvin Blake told the annual meeting of the Board of Missions of the Methodist Church here yesterday.

Dr. Blake is the board's executive secretary for Africa, and a former missionary on that continent.

The address and other business was transacted with about 600 persons attending the session.

The development of the Christian church in Africa has been deeply affected by these political-social changes, Dr. Blake added. "Indeed, it is the Christian church, in spite of error and weakness, that may prove to be the solidifying and inte-

Terrence H. Bartholomew To Play At Inauguration

S/5 TERRENCE H. Bartholomew, whose wife, Jane, lives at 304 Vernon Ave., Glen Burnie, Md., is scheduled to participate with other members of the U. S. Army Field Band in the inaugural parade for President-elect John F. Kennedy in Washington, D. C., Friday.

This will mark the third inaugural appearance of this well-known Army touring band.

Specialist Bartholomew entered the Army in November 1955 and plays the saxophone with the band, which is regularly stationed at Fort George G. Meade, Md.

grating force that held things together as peace and harmony were being wrought out on the anvil of discord, disunity, stress and confusion."

"Looking at current unrest and rapid changes from the perspective of history it becomes evident that the world has been off-center for the greater part of the 20th century and is in the process of righting itself," he said. "Those who look too closely at the distress points throughout the world miss the perspective of history and become pessimistic. Our generation is clearly underlining the fact that 'no one wants to be a marginal man'. Some have divided the world into the 'haves' and the 'have-nots'. The 'haves' have 'had it'. The 'have-nots' have complied with the decisions of the 'haves'. The last word in the hands of the West is quickly becoming a thing of the past and the so-called 'little peoples' of the world are demanding their rightful 'place in the sun'." Dr. Blake said.

The board's financial picture for the twelve months ending May 31, 1960 was interpreted to the group by George L. Hergesheimer of Philadelphia, an assistant treasurer of the board and treasurer of the Division of National Missions.

More than $30,000,000 was spent by the Methodist Church, through its board of missions for mission work at home and overseas during fiscal 1960, a record expenditure for a single year, Hergesheimer pointed out.

The denomination, through the mission board, also had record income of $29,663,000, he reported.

Hergesheimer gave a composite financial report for the board and its four divisions — Division of National Missions, Division of World Missions, Joint Section of Education and Cultivation, and Woman's Division of Christian Service.

He said that $13,444,000 was disbursed for mission work in 44 countries overseas, representing 51 per cent of all expenditures. The disbursement for home mission work (U. S. and Puerto Rico) totaled, $11,123,000 or 37 per cent of all expenditures.

It was also reported that the Methodist Church in cooperation with other Protestant denominations, helped to launch two programs in the Congo in 1960 which, though as yet largely unpublicized, offer great potential for furnishing trained church leaders for the newly independent but chaotic country.

In the new Congo, self-governing politically and increasingly so in church affairs, the Church of Christ in Congo, (of which Methodism is part) has a "reconciling role" to play across the divisions of tribe and province, Rev. Dr. Eugene L. Smith said. If this is to be done effectively, and if the church is to speak relevantly to the mod-

ROSETO — A school bus carrying 33 elementary and high school pupils skidded about 600 feet backwards, mounted a concrete retaining wall and struck a house about 8 a.m. yesterday. No one was injured.

Local police said the driver, Mario C. Dallorto, 1033 E. Main St., Pen Argyl, was driving the bus west on Columbus Ave. hill and stopped about halfway up to pick up a child.

Another 100 Yards

He said he continued about another 100 yards and the bus began to skid. The vehicle mounted the retaining wall and knocked down a wooden front porch at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Parrillo, Columbus and Roseto Aves.

The bus was carrying pupils to Our Lady of Mt. Carmel Elementary School and Pope Pius X High School.

Monroe Farmers Are Urged To Review Crop Contracts

FARMERS who have conservation reserve contracts covering part of their cropland should review their contracts before completing their 1961 cropping plans, Donald Reish, chairman of the Monroe County Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation committee, said last night.

A review of the contracts is recommended as a means of being sure of the acreage of permitted crops that may be grown and harvested.

Each conservation reserve contract includes a limitation of the number of acres on the farm that can be used for the growing and harvesting of crops. That acreage is called the permitted acreage of soil bank base crops.

Soil Bank
All the grains, oilseeds and row crops are classified as soil bank base crops.

The permitted acreage of the soil bank base crops is important because exceeding that acreage may result in violation of the contract and a reduction of the annual payment or possible loss of the entire payment.

In addition Reish reminded farmers that conservation reserve contracts provide that cropland under contract is not to be grazed, cut for hay or a crop harvested from it.

In Monroe County there are 5270 acres of cropland on 96 farms under reserve contracts.

Newfoundland Area Changes In Two Different Ways

NEWFOUNDLAND — The changing face of a community is evident not only in the shiny new tall-finned automobiles and well-kept highways but in disappearing occupations and a different way of life.

In LaAnna, the many large homes, once "boarding houses" for summer guests who loved to spend long, hot months in the "country" to enjoy "farm" life, are now occupied by single families and are no longer vacation homes.

Also in LaAnna, the end of operations at the clothespin and toy factory signaled the exodus of residents who moved to urban and suburban areas.

The toy factory in Newfoundland has "changed over" to other operations, where once wood-working activities — the making of yo-yo's and flagpole ornaments — were prime occupations.

The horsecollars, once an important part of the stock at Staphs, have finally disappeared, with the last sold recently to the "plain people" — the Amish and Mennonites of the Pennsylvania Dutch country who still use non-mechanized farm equipment.

New Industry
The introduction of plastics has opened a new industry in South Sterling, with the coming of Precoro Plastics.

The only unchanging business in this mountain community is the resort business — a booming cnc. With more and more leisure time, paid vacations, etc., city residents are looking for a vacationland. The Poconos, with expanses of woodlands, tumbling streams, fine weather and recreational facilities, continue to offer a pleasant playground.

Yes, the face of Newfoundland and its surrounding villages has changed. The change is evident, not only in the disappearance of road racing — where the young men dashed up the road in a touring car, made a fast turn and drove back before the dust clouds settled — but in the changing occupations of its residents.

UNDERHEATED

Your family deserves FLAMELESS ELECTRIC HOME HEATING!

What a winter! And what an acid test for home heating systems! Has your system been trying to compete with Old Man Winter... giving you drafty rooms? sudden blasts of heat—then periods of uncomfortable cold? one room overheated? another underheated? Not if you have flameless electric home heating. Hundreds of Central Eastern Pennsylvania families in electrically heated homes have enjoyed perfect comfort! These families have found that even zero weather is no match for the even, draft-free warmth of electric heating units. And the warmth is equally pleasant at floor level or head level.

So, when you buy or build a new home or remodel your existing home, be sure to specify flameless electric home heating.

Bethlehem Worried Over Track Water

BETHLEHEM Authority took steps to protect the city's future water supply. The action is in connection with the proposed plans for the construction of the $4 million dollar car racing speedway, near Blakeslee.

The authority has communicated with the State Department of Forests and Waters to insure the clean-stream laws are not violated in the construction of the speedway.

Plans for the speedway were announced last month by Racing, Inc., Monroe County. The track when completed will provide some of the finest driver facilities in the United States.

A spokesman for the Bethlehem Authority said last week that the site of the proposed race track is in the Bethlehem watershed area. The main creek in concern is the Tunkhannock Creek.

The authority wants the Department of Forests and Waters to make sure that all waste material dumped into the creek from the proposed grandstand and eating facilities are properly treated before they enter the stream.

Five Inches Of Snow Hits Poconos

APPROXIMATELY five inches of snow fell on the Pocono Mountains yesterday and Sunday, causing some traffic tieups. Public transportation was not affected.

The snow followed rain and sleet which made traveling hazardous, particularly in hilly sections.

Area schools remained open and businesses operated normally.

The Monroe County Office of the State Highways Dept. had 35 trucks, seven loaders, three graders and one shovel plus 70 men in action cinderling and plowing.

Plows, Cinder Trucks Out
Borough street departments also had plows and cinderling crews out.

There was a series of traffic tieups in the Mt. Pocono area, but most roads were reported passable. State Police recommended use of snow chains or tires.

Spokesmen for the Erie-Lackawanna Railroad and the American House, headquarters here for Martz and Greyhound buses, reported all operating on normal schedules.

A series of minor traffic accidents was attributed to slippery roads and streets, but no one was seriously injured.

The state allocations will provide $530 for each full time student enrolled for the school year of 1960-61 and $916,070 for equipment for new buildings.

May Affect County

Increased appropriations for the Dept. of Commerce and Dept. of Forests and Waters were contained in the budget for the 13 months beginning June 1 may have a positive effect on Monroe County's economy.

Included is $200,000 for a new program for the purpose of promoting the tourist industry in Pennsylvania. Matching fund grants would be made to the agencies designated by the counties for tourist promotion activities on the basis of 10 cents per capita or $3 per rental room.

No county would receive less than $1,000 nor more than 20 percent of the amount appropriated. The program is designed to aid the tourist industry by the same method the Industrial Development Assistance program is designed to aid in promotion of industrial expansion.

Other Provisions
Among other provisions which may eventually affect Monroe County are:

Industrial development administration—$454,973 this year, compared to $314,157 last year, based on one-half of the 1959-61 appropriation; promotion of tourist travel, $527,822, compared to $225,533 the year before; business services, $95,416, compared to $44,297 the previous year; urban renewal, $8,000,000, against $2,500,000 the year before.

Industrial development loans—$8,000,000, compared to $4,410,000 the previous year; maintenance and regulation of water resources, $1,246,590, against $747,921 the year before; maintenance of forest and park services, $4,627,637 compared to $3,365,019 the previous year; payment to flood control fund, $1,386,519, against $1,019,500 the previous year; forests and park services, $8,879, compared to $400,000 the year before, with an additional $636,415 recommended for capital improvements in the Dept. of Forests and Waters from the public buildings construction fund.

Highways' Okay Reverses Earlier Road Tests Decision

A STATE Highways Department announcement over the weekend to build, with federal aid, roadside rests on either side of the eastern terminus of the Keystone Shortway was contradicted in a recent release by Park H. Martin, secretary of highways.

Martin notified the Shortway Association that his department is not allowed to construct rest areas and parking turnouts along interstate highways.

Sunday the department announcement said 67 rest areas will be constructed along 1,554 miles of federal interstate highways in the state.

Under the plan, the federal government will pay 90 percent of the cost of acquiring and improving the rest area, but the state will have to pay for equipment and facilities.

The first rest area will be along side the northbound lanes, near Bartonsville, of the 3.1-mile, Bartonsville-Tannersville section. Another area will later be constructed on the southbound side north of Tannersville, the department said.

A controlled access highway is one in which entrance and exit is permitted only at interchanges. Roadside businesses are prohibited.

No explanation was available on the turnaround move.

Martin's notification came after an idea was suggested by Richard H. D. Bullock, proprietor of Swiftwater Inn, in a letter to the association.

Martin's letter in reply said:

"I am sorry to say, that under the rules of the Bureau of Public Roads, we are not allowed to construct such facilities. I do not agree with this ruling and will continue to work to have it changed. I think it highly essential that such places be made available for rest and relief to travelers traveling long distances."

"In regard to the erection of telephone booths at convenient places for the public along interstate highways, there has been no relaxation of the rules of the bureau prohibiting such facilities. This again I think is a serious mistake and I strongly favor such accommodations."

Bullock said in his letter that he feels the highway will compare if not surpass Skyline Drive and the Blue Ridge Parkway through Virginia and the Carolinas.

He added:

"I honestly believe there will be many places along the Shortway where the original contract should include turnouts and parking areas such as they provide along the Blue Ridge where our tourists may slow their pace and enjoy the panorama of crossing our entire state through the most beautiful scenery."

Bullock said last night that the rest areas announced over the weekend were what he had in mind only "I didn't want them at the interchanges, but along the route."

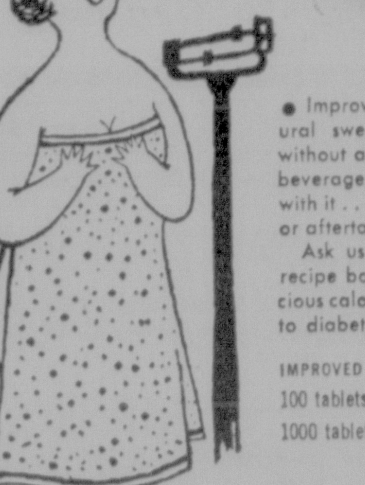

He said the highways he cited in his letter to the association have picnic areas and places to park for scenic viewing along the route of the highway, not merely at the interchanges.

Walter Requests Tax Slice For Development Groups

Special To The Daily Record

WASHINGTON—Rep. Francis E. Walter (D-Pa.) has asked Congress to amend the Internal Revenue Code to permit income tax deductions for contributions and gifts to industrial-development organizations.

The bill, if adopted, would be a tremendous boost to industrial development organizations trying to aid depressed areas, such as the Panther Valley section of Pennsylvania, Rep. Walter said.

Walter's bill is a follow-up to his depressed area bill which he introduced last week.

The Easton congressman said he had in mind the Carbon Schuylkill Industrial Corporation when he had his "income tax deduction" bill written. Walter represents the Carbon, Monroe and Northampton County area.

"Hampered"
"This organization, which is trying to attract new industry into the Panther Valley area, has been hampered because contributions and gifts from individuals cannot be classified as charitable and therefore are not tax deductible."

"I am aware, Walter continued, "that such an organization can ask for an 'exemption ruling' from Internal Revenue Service, but the final decision is left to the discretion of the District Director of IRS. My proposal would amend the Internal Revenue Code and automatically cover all contributions to community development organizations. It would be based on the same principal as contributions to churches and charitable organizations," he said.

No Injuries In Car-School Bus Accident

STATE TROOPERS Donald Hensley and Stanley Cincchowski, Stroudsburg barracks, investigated a car-school bus accident yesterday at 11:35 a.m. two and a half miles west of Stroudsburg on Route 209.

Injured in the accident was Mrs. Margaret Dougherty, Newark, N. J., a passenger in the car. She was taken to the Monroe County General Hospital for treatment and released.

Police identified the drivers as John Dougherty, 60, Newark, N. J., operator of the car, and Donald E. Smith, 40, Stroudsburg, RD 4, operator of the school bus.

Trooper Hensley said both vehicles were traveling east on Route 209 at the time of the accident.

He added Smith had stopped to pick up a kindergarten pupil when Dougherty applied his brakes to stop. Due to the slippery road conditions Dougherty's car hit the back of the school bus.

At the time of the accident there were two kindergarten pupils aboard the bus. Neither were injured.

The damage was estimated by police at $800 to the Dougherty car and $10 to the school bus.

More Information
Trooper Cincchowski gave additional information on an accident which occurred Sunday at 7:30 p.m., four miles west of Stroudsburg, near Madison Motel.

Christine D. Althouse, 22, of New Tripoli RD 1, struck a car driven by Mrs. Gladys Jones, 39, of 124 Maple St., Stroudsburg. The latter was backing onto Route 209.

Miss Althouse was treated in the Monroe County General Hospital for a laceration to the chin that required 14 stitches to close. She was released following treatment.

Damage was estimated at $750 to the Jones car and $350 to the Althouse vehicle.

The police are continuing the investigation of both accidents today.

Transportation Plan

Still another plan for coordinating transportation policy has been presented. This one is the result of a staff study made for the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee.

It would create a Federal Transportation Commission that would take over the regulating functions of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Civil Aeronautics Board and the Federal Maritime Board, which agencies would be abolished.

Their administrative and executive functions would be assigned to a Cabinet-level Department of Transportation, which would also take over the Bureau of Public Roads and transportation operations now scattered through the executive branch.

The study, made by a task force headed by John P. Doyle, retired Air Force general and transportation specialist, produced much evidence supporting the need for co-ordinating all phases of federal activity in the transportation field.

"Splintering of economic regulation" has led to "paradoxical decisions and conflicts," the report asserts. As an example, the CAB subsidizes local airline service between two cities while the ICC approves withdrawal of unsubsidized and loss-ridden rail passenger service between the same cities.

The recommendations are similar to those already proposed by Sen. Clifford Case (R-N. J.), but they go far beyond those offered by James M. Landis, who has been assigned by President-elect Kennedy to draft legislation overhauling the regulatory agencies.

Mr. Landis says such plans for drastic centralization of transportation operations are "unrealistic." He favors a transportation bureau in the president's office that would co-ordinate, but not supersede, existing agencies.

Still to be heard from is the President-elect. His views should have much influence in determining whether Congress accepts drastic measures, which Mr. Landis thinks are impractical, or Mr. Landis' plan, which may not be quite adequate.

Government Finances

One of the big problems faced by government is that of arriving at an accurate estimate of income from taxes. This is particularly true when the tax income is geared to the economy.

Gov. David L. Lawrence has announced that the state's financial condition will not permit the fulfillment of all the 1961 budget requests. Had the Leader administration followed a similar procedure, the present administration would not have been faced with making up a $140 million deficit.

If the tax estimates are made during a period when production and spending are at a high point, any recession, no matter how slight can throw the whole plan out of gear.

It would seem to be a wise procedure for some plan to be devised whereby the income of one year or biennium would be the determining factor for the spending of the succeeding period.

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Kennedys And Hoover

Many may be surprised at the apparent intimacy of Herbert Hoover and the Kennedys, father and son. Also that the genial last of the Republicans should have spoken of John Kennedy in the following terms at his dedication of the Hoover Dam at Lake Okechobee, Florida:

"I am sure that the American people earnestly wish for the success of the new Administration. It is faced with one of the greatest challenges of our whole history."

Herbert Hoover, while loyal to the Republican Party and grateful for the honors it has brought him, has always adopted a national point of view. He first served under Woodrow Wilson as Food Administrator.

His relations with Wilson were closer than with any other President and he wrote a book which is the best apology for that President's career.

He subsequently served under Presidents Harding and Coolidge as Secretary of Commerce. He elevated that department to a position it has never since been able to maintain. Then he was elected President.

Franklin D. Roosevelt and Herbert Hoover were friends in the 1920's but when Roosevelt was President, he treated Hoover with utter contempt. During the whole of the Roosevelt regime, Hoover never entered the White House and was never treated with the common courtesy due his position.

However, Harry Truman reversed this attitude. He not only treated Herbert Hoover with the decent respect due to an ex-President, but he employed his services both as a food expert and in the development of the Commission for the Organization of the Executive Branch of the Government. The two men seem to have taken a liking to each other and became friends.

President Eisenhower called on Mr. Hoover before he became President. However, no friendship developed between these men.

It is true that Eisenhower reappointed the Hoover Commission but his support was lukewarm. Also, Eisenhower knew that Hoover and most of his friends preferred Senator Robert A. Taft.

The startling fact is that Richard Nixon was in the Waldorf Towers where Herbert Hoover and General Douglas MacArthur live, for four days during the campaign without calling on either of them. This must have hurt Herbert Hoover cruelly because he was the man who selected Nixon to run for member of the House of Representatives.

Joe Kennedy, father of the President, was a member of the Hoover Commission and worked diligently. In fact, Mr. Hoover gained considerable respect for the elder Kennedy's knowledge of the complex structure of the government, particularly the new independent agencies.

Hoover often told me how reliable Joe Kennedy's knowledge was. Then, for a time, Robert Kennedy was employed as a counsel for the Hoover Commission and Hoover was often interested in his ideas and in his stubbornness.

Then, John Kennedy, as Senator, introduced measures in the Senate to implement the work of the Commission. A friendship developed between Mr. Hoover and Joe Kennedy, based on mutual respect.

This evidenced itself when Joe Kennedy called on Hoover to arrange for John Kennedy's meeting with Richard Nixon in Miami after the election. It was an unusual meeting because most often the elected candidate does not see the defeated candidate except during the inauguration ceremonies. John Kennedy wanted to pay his respects to Richard Nixon without ceremony and Hoover agreed to arrange it, which he did over the telephone.

Since his election, John Kennedy has called on Hoover twice and has personally invited him to the Inauguration. For the first time in many decades, three former Presidents, Hoover, Truman and Eisenhower will be in attendance.

Hoover will not stay too long because of the season of the year when it gets a bit chill in Washington, but he is interrupting his fishing trip to the Florida keys to spend one day in Washington for this occasion.

Herbert Hoover is now 86 years old and is strenuously engaged in literary enterprises and in fund raising for certain pet purposes such as the Hoover Library, and the Boys' Clubs of America. He puts in long hours with one break after lunch for a siesta.

He keeps in close touch with all the news of the day, but his most constant activity is research for his books. He is no longer interested in partisan politics or in small gossip — taking the view that at his advanced age, there is too much to do and too little time to do it.

The Pennsylvania Story

Budget Discipline

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg — There is a story behind that budget presentation yesterday by the Lawrence Administration to the Legislature.

It may perhaps serve as a fitting note of sorts for the moment at least, for Pennsylvania taxpayers who are going to have to dig down deeper in their pocket-books.

To begin with, Mr. Lawrence long has been known as a political old pro who knows how to run a tight, well-disciplined organization.

It is this know-how — not necessarily slavish but firm and determined — that within the past two years generally has permeated the vast departmental sprawl-out on Capitol Hill.

It is this just revealed budget for the upcoming fiscal year that serves as an illustration of this.

To begin with, that Jan. 16

deadline for submission of the budget was going to be met on Monday — or some heads were destined to roll.

The deadline was "it" — even if it meant presenting the fiscal documentary with blood and sweat still fresh on the pages!

To meet that deadline, it was night hours for the budget staff. It even reached the point where Budget Secretary David R. Baldwin couldn't even attend his Cub pack executive committee meeting!

In the past, budget deadlines oftentimes were set, only to be moved back one, two or three times. Such was not destined to be the case this time — if David Leo Lawrence has his way.

But there is another facet to this budget hoodlum that illustrates perhaps more succinctly the discipline being maintained by the Lawrence Administration.

Up to the advent of the Leader Administration some six years ago the budget submitted by the Governor to the General Assembly was "the" budget. That was it with no ands, ifs or buts attached. Department heads of the administration concerned abided by it.

This changed somewhat during the Leader Administration. If a department head didn't like the way his particular budgetary recommendation to the Governor's Office was treated, he seemingly enjoyed the latitude of blowing off about it — to the extent in some instances that lawmakers wanted to know how come there were "two" budgets being offered: One by the administration — and the other by the individual department head!

In other words if a cabinet member took exception to the slash accorded his budget recommendations, he was free to go to the Legislature and battle for his own higher budget desires.

This was most strikingly illustrated during the 1957 session when then Secretary of Welfare Harry Shapiro virtually submitted his own budget for the department — over that of the Leader Administration.

However, by law it is up to the governor to submit a budget — not individual department heads.

The governor's budget in theory at least is compiled on the basis of recommendations of individual department heads — with the evaluated recommendations of these departmental chiefs forming the basis for the gubernatorial budgetary submission.

Certainly department heads are cut. Each of course has his own ambitious program or programs that to him seem to be of the greatest importance.

However, there is just so much money to go around — and it's up to the Governor to come up with the final single recommendation as to how this is to be distributed. That is what is known as the Governor's budget.

That is what the Legislature had before it yesterday. It is Mr. Lawrence's budget — not a hodgepodge of what individual department heads think they should have expressed in terms of individual protestations to the Legislature.

It's a touch of the discipline that has settled over Capitol Hill under the aegis of David Leo Lawrence.

Off The Record

It is heart-warming to see a turnout to a dedication of a town's post office such as the one that showed up at the Newfoundland ceremony Sunday.

Despite the poor weather—Snow and sleet—a capacity crowd filled South Wayne High's auditorium for the program.

It goes to show that small towns back their projects to the hilt when it is worthy of recognition.

Incidentally we were amazed at the poise of South Wayne High's Donna Bartleson as a speaker.

The sophomore student spoke on the "Code to the Flag," at the dedication.

Her professional manner captivated the audience which later gave her tons of applause long after she finished.

Seen having dinner together yesterday were two old friends—Judge Chester H. Rhodes and Rev. Peter Wohlson.

The pair, two of the leading dignitaries in Monroe County, were going over old times and the present day trends compared to the past.

Al Pelham, the Penn-Stroud fixture, wants it known he will not support New York's new league baseball entry in major league baseball.

At it still disgusted over the way the New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers left the metropolitan area for a tour of duty on the west coast.

Magie mirror upon the wall who is the fairest one of all: Sunday and Monday we'll go with the Highways Department of Monroe County for keeping our main roads in traveling condition for motorists.

Despite deplorable weather conditions, the area highways organization worked around the clock to let incoming traffic go through the Stroudsburgs with a minimum of delays.

"Well," the doctor replied hesitantly, "to be perfectly frank, you are just plain lazy."

"Thank you, doctor," murmured the patient. "Now give me the scientific name so I can tell the family."

The Allen-Scott Report

Bipartisan Cooperation

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott
Washington — President-elect Kennedy is getting some significant unexpected congressional backing for his proposal to put medical care for the aged under social security.

Republican Senators Jacob J. A. Javits, N. Y., and Clifford Case, N. J., are offering to back the incoming Democratic President on that in a bill of their own.

Governor Nelson Rockefeller fully approves the measure they will introduce.

Also, Javits and Case confidently anticipate that eight or ten other Republican senators will co-sponsor their legislation, and that House Republicans will submit it there.

Senators Javits and Case are seeking a conference with Kennedy to urge that he throw his influence behind bipartisan medical care legislation.

They contend that would ensure its speedy enactment.

The Javits-Case bill differs importantly in one respect from that generally favored by Kennedy. Under their measure, a choice between two medical care plans would be available for those over 65.

Kennedy advocates a single system of such medical care under social security, to be financed by increasing the social security tax paid by workers and employers.

This formula is one of the two alternatives of the Javits-Case measure.

Under the other, the government would pay up to $60 on the premium cost of private health insurance policies with the states providing a similar amount. This federal-state program would be financed either by a payroll tax, like social security, or by monthly assessments from those not under social security.

Medical care for the aged is high on Kennedy's legislative priority list.

Leaders of the House Ways and Means Committee, where this measure must originate, already have been consulted on it. Also Speaker Sam Rayburn and Democratic Floor Leader John McCormack, Mass., who favor speedy action on the matter.

They have discussed it with Secretary-designate Ribicoff of the Department of Health, Education & Welfare. He has told the House leaders he is prepared to testify before the Ways and Means Committee on the details of the new Administration's proposal.

Governor Rockefeller also may present his views to the Committee. Senator Javits is urging that.

Unsmooth nomination — Edward (Ted) Kennedy, the President-elect's young brother, does not know it, but he has been proposed for a very exceptional role.

It happened this way: Senators Gale McGee (D., Wyo.) Frank Church (D., Idaho) and Frank Moss (D., Utah) were discussing their recent tour of Africa with officials of the Central Intelligence Agency. The latter were particularly interested in the senators' report on the strife-torn Congo.

"We are profoundly concerned about that situation," said one CIA official. "What is desperately needed there is a leader who could bring the various factions together. Otherwise, the chaos and fighting will intensify. During your visit there, did you encounter anyone who could be a unifying force; someone whom we could support to lead that unfortunate country out of its abyss?"

There was a long silence as the three senators pondered this question. Finally, McGee spoke up:

"Of all the persons I met in the Congo, there is one who could meet that challenge. He is Ted Kennedy, the President-elect's young brother. He is the only one I know of who got along with every Congo leader he met. Without exception, all were very enthusiastic about him. I am fully convinced he really could unite that nation."

Everyone laughed, but McGee insisted, "I'm serious. I mean just that. Ted Kennedy was better informed about the Congo than the State Department and other experts who briefed us on it. He knew far more about that country than they did, and every where he went he was very popular and made a big hit."

Wait and see — Both Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., and Senate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen, Ill., are privately insisting there will be a vote this session on the shelved proposal to curb unlimited debate. That's what they are firmly telling party colleagues.

Mansfield told a Democratic group, "I give you my solemn word that the Senate will vote on a change of the rules before it adjourns this year." And Dirksen told a GOP gathering, "I assure you emphatically the Senate will vote on limiting debate before it winds up in the summer."

The wives of the two Republican members of the new Democratic cabinet are being invited to join the Women's National Democratic Club. All the cabinet wives are being asked to do that, and no exception is being made of Mrs. C. Douglas Dillon, wife of the Treasury Secretary, and Mrs. Robert McNamara, wife of the Defense Secretary. However, no "pressure" is being put on them to become members. Club officers say that is strictly up to each cabinet wife.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

It was not what you would call a warm welcome home. The doors on the car froze fast in the driving rain, the sleet pelted me from above and the ice under the snow made unloading my loot pretty precarious.

The cat was glad to see me, and so, I suspect, was Peter whose supply of frozen dinners had run out. The rest of you seem to have managed very well without me, and to be honest I wasn't exactly missing you either.

Besides, there were enough hometown folks around to keep me from feeling homesick. Vi Pastornik, of Shawnee, flew up from Miami to do the Adele Simpson Show and was flying right on to Denver, but she looks wonderful and the Simpson clothes were better than ever, if that's possible.

Then there was David Gothe, of Little Pond Farm, who had just flown back from Italy and had talked to my sister in Rome and reported that Irene, who is going to stay there for the winter, was planning to go to tea with them. You'd have been so proud of the reception the fashion press gave his collection this year.

And coming out of John Fredrick's, where I'd been trying on hats, who should come long but Betty Patterson, looking really more fashionable than the fashion show. And I rode home on the train with Phoebe Sice.

It was a wonderful week, but I'm glad to be home. I probably won't show it for another week, since it will take that long to make up for the sleep I missed, and I have a tendency to yawn right in the middle of somebody's most exciting report.

But I am glad. Nowhere else in the world would a community have "Delaware Water Gap Camping and Literary Society." It's true and is one of the items

Pitti Palace Filled For Fashions

By Patricia Green AP Fashion Writer

Florence, Italy (AP) — Two famous designers demonstrated at the Florence fashion show Sunday that the old familiar ways are sometimes the best.

Emilio Pucci and Princess Irene Gallizine wound up the showings of boutique and sportswear items at the show which opened in the Pitti Palace Saturday to the biggest audience in the history of Italian culture.

In her spring collection, Gallizine made more of her luscious silk tunics and overtops worn with pants. To some she added an overskirt that could be worn with the top alone or as a three-piece costume with the pants.

Colors were as mouth-watering as ever. A new watermelon red looked good enough to eat.

Gallizine put black jet exclamation points on a lemon yellow silk shantung top, then covered the pants with a floor-length evening skirt. A gold sleeveless top with matching pants got a puffy overskirt shaped like a parasol and edged with fringing.

One pale yellow three-piece suit in costume had a shoulder-spanning turtle-necked collar, full skirt and slim pants all embroidered with gold sequins. It was as luxurious as you could get, and it took Gallizine's fine hand to pull it off with ladylike extravagance.

Pucci, the king of Italian stretch ski wear and play clothes, decided to depart from his usual superlative sportswear. He did show some chemise dresses in pretty scarf prints, and cute bikinis with matching cover-ups, but for the most part he concentrated on dressy evening clothes.

His famous "Emilioform" — which is elasticized silk jersey made into form-fitting pants, was shown with strapless tops, boots of matching fabric, elbow-length satin gloves and elaborate jewelry. One example was in iridescent pink so shimmering it seemed wired for electricity.

The colors throughout the collection were pinks and reds, including the palest to the most shocking pink stockings worn for daytime with red sandals.

Wirt D. Miller's hi-lights

There are still plenty of cold mornings ahead . . . and to start these mornings out right, there's nothing like a good solid breakfast of pancakes and sausage . . .

For the best results . . . start with the best ingredients . . . you just can't miss with PIONEER INSTANT BUCKWHEAT FLOUR . . . and along side, those ultra-delicious JONES DAIRY LITTLE SAUSAGES . . . so tender . . . so tasty.

And those who like just the right sweetening will always go for SMUCKERS PAN CAKE SYRUP along with LYLES GOLDEN SYRUP . . . and for those who haven't tried it yet, we suggest apple butter with your pancakes . . . but be sure it's SMUCKERS OLD FASHIONED APPLE BUTTER (there is a difference).

Pancakes and sausage or just plain pancakes does not just have to be a breakfast meal . . . they're really good any meal. So why not make your next meal pancakes and sausage . . . call WIRT D. MILLER right now . . .

HA 1-5720 and tell them you're hungry for pancakes and to send over the "fixins" . . . or if you're down town drop in at 726 Main Street, Stroudsburg . . . you'll be so surprised at the different foods you've never seen before!

History You Can Touch In Relics Presented To Historical Museum

The Monroe County Historical Society Museum, Ninth and Main Sts., Stroudsburg, presents history in its most tangible form: history which children can see and touch, but it also includes original records for research and study.

Its appeal to children is evident in the report of the curator, Mrs. Horace Walters, given at the annual business meeting of the Historical Society. During the past year no fewer than 19 groups of young people made special trips to the museum including school classes, Cub Scouts, Brownies and college classes.

In addition students were assisted with historical research, requests for genealogical information from many parts of the country were answered and Summer visitors from many areas inspected its treasures.

Special Exhibits

The Historical Museums are open Tuesday afternoons to the general public and during the past year a patriotic exhibit marked July; the 150th anniversary of Stroudsburg was subject of an exhibit in August; Presidential Elections in November and Christmas greeting cards in December.

Serving as hosts during the year were Dr. and Mrs. John C. Appel, Mr. and Mrs. Elston Arnt, Mrs. W. E. Andrew and members of the executive board of the DAR, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Brown, Mrs. Lou Burnett, Mrs. Edward Calkins, Mrs. Bernard Conway, Miss Grace Depue, Dr. and Mrs. Charles S. Flagler, Mr. and Mrs. Earl F. Groner, Mrs. Linda Halch, Mr. and Mrs. Linda Halch, Dr. LeRoy J. Koehler, Miss Margaret Mutchler, Mrs. T. F. Rhodes and Mrs. Randall Roberts.

Improvements to the museum included a new newspaper filing cabinet for bound copies of Monroe County newspaper, and a glass show case.

Some 60 acquisitions have been donated to the museum during the past year, Mrs. Walters reported, and added to the collections.

Many of the gifts were isolated gifts from individuals. However one major collection was presented by Miss Mary S. Albertson, of Palm Beach, Fla., executor of the estate of Edward Smith, Washington St., East Stroudsburg.

Personal Mementoes

Most picturesque are the clothes, furniture and personal mementoes from the past. This year donations of clothing have included:

A Paisley shawl more than 100 years old which belonged to Mrs. Alexander Fowler, nee Maria Rafferty, whose brother, James Rafferty, founded the Monroe Democrat — presented by her grandniece, Mrs. Bertha Morey Wilson.

White and brown linsey woolsey from the Towne and Page family of Massachusetts presented by Allen Starr Phelps, a descendant.

Uniforms

Uniforms from recent wars, including a uniform of Second Lt. in the Women's Marine Corps worn by Shirley Dunlap and two navy blue sailor suits worn by First Control Officer first class James C. Cummings, presented by James and Shirley Cummings; a World War II Marine Uniform presented by James Shafer; and an overcoat from World War II presented by William H. Clark.

The fireman's uniform of blue overcoat and belt belonging to August Miller, former chief of Phoenix Fire Co., Stroudsburg.

J.; antique cup and plate from dishes owned by Melchior and Sarah Dreher and a silhouette of Mrs. Catherine Jana (Stewart) Turner, presented by Mrs. Alice Roberts, a granddaughter; and another antique brass bed-warmer presented by Mrs. William Lengua, of Bushkill.

Personal treasures include: the diplomas of Dr. Floyd Buzard and medical books, presented by Dr. Charles S. Flagler; a multi-shot superposed lead flint lock rifle circa 1825 which had belonged to Frank H. Smith, of East Stroudsburg; and an antique powder horn presented by Dr. Charles Flagler.

PIAA Urges Crack Down On Rowdiness

HARRISBURG (AP) — The PIAA feels it now has a clear mandate from its high school members to crack down on schools where rowdiness has become a repeated occurrence at their games.

Reviewing the votes on two amendments to the organization's constitution and by-laws pertaining to conduct at athletic contests, the PIAA noted editorially in its month's "Pa'athlete."

"We think it is a clear mandate to district committees and to the Board of Control to take action and enforce the rules of good behavior at interscholastic athletic contests."

One amendment reads: "A school may be suspended when the conduct of its administration, faculty, coaches, teams, students or team followers is unsportsmanlike and results in actions which are detrimental to the individual, school and public welfare and which are prejudicial to the purposes of this association."

The second says: "The code of ethics pertaining to high school athletics is to be regarded, not only as recommendations, but as rules governing the conduct of schools, the coach, officials, athletic directors, principals and the public."

The editorial commented that the district committees and the Board of Control already had the power to suspend for the causes stated in the first amendment, but proposed the amendment to get "an expression from member schools of current sentiment concerning bad behavior at athletic contests."

The vote, reported the "Pa'athlete," was 555-119.

The second amendment passed, 594-80.

The editorial also indicated the PIAA doesn't plan any special crackdown in the form of suspension against schools offending the code.

This is a drastic step rarely taken by the governing body of high school athletics in Pennsylvania, although one school was handed a one-year suspension in 1959 for rowdy conduct of its followers.

Rather, the editorial indicates it will expect school principals to make more rigorous enforcement of the code. It states:

"Principals, who are responsible to the association for the execution of PIAA policy, can emphasize the results of improper behavior at athletic contests. We believe this will assist principals in the discharge of their duties."

How many schools are having trouble with rowdiness is not known.

Obitz, who held the Shawnee job for 15 years, said he resigned so that he and his partner, Dick Farley, Shawnee associate pro, could devote more time to their golf operations at White Face Inn, Lake Placid, N.Y. Taminent-in-the-Poconos and the Palm Aire Country Club, Pompano Beach, Fla.

The Obitz-Farley Co. took over the golf set-up at Pompano Beach the first of this year.

Group Plans Board Of Women Officials

AN organizational meeting to form a North East Board of Women Officials was held recently at East Stroudsburg State College.

Dr. Laura Evans, a National Judge and teacher in the Health and Physical Education Department at the college was instrumental in arranging the meeting. Much interest was shown by teachers, coaches and college students.

The purpose of a Board of Women Officials is two fold: (1) the raising of standards for girls' and women's sports and (2) to promote highly nationally trained officials.

The increased demand for women officials in this area necessitates the formation of such a board it was reported. Before affiliating with the Women's National Officials Rating Committee, there must be expressed interest within the local situation. The group applying for membership must have at least three National Officials, one of whom has the qualification of a National Judge.

Some sports in which women officials can be rated are badminton, basketball, softball, swimming, tennis, track and field, volleyball and field hockey.

Practical and written examinations are given individuals interested in becoming rated officials. There are three levels of rating. High school students — Intramural Rating, college and adult groups — Local and National Rating.

Discussion concerning dates for basketball examinations and election of officers was made. Elected officers are Dr. Laura Evans, State College, chairman; Miss Anne Venezia, ESS College, vice chairman; Mrs. Pauline Gearhart, ES secretary.

Others showing great interest are Mrs. Catherine Rowe, Mrs. Joyce Murray, Miss Joan McKee, Sara McGrath, Mary Lou Seasco, Suzanne Schotta, Rose Colbert, Gail Davis, Andrea Farris, Edna Flier, Pat Brown, Annette Barlini, Sandra Tross, Mary Ann Domitrovitz.

The vote, reported the "Pa'athlete," was 555-119.

The second amendment passed, 594-80.

Becomes AL's Highest Paid Ball Player

By WILL GRIMSLEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A jovial, relaxed Mickey Mantle signed his 1961 contract with the New York Yankees Monday for a reported $75,000 and became the highest paid baseball player in the American League.

"I don't remember when I have felt better at this state," the switch-hitting center-fielder said after a meeting with General Manager Roy Hamey. "I ought to have my best year."

Mantle not only got back the salary cut he took last year, a reported $7,000, but picked up $3,000 additionally, according to the best information available.

Baseball salaries are as closely guarded secrets as atomic information, but somebody always spills the isotopes.

Mantle at first admitted that the 1961 contract was the best of 11 he has signed with the Yankees, and then tossed in a smoke screen, adding: "I'd say it's equal to the best I've ever had."

The muscled slugger reportedly received $72,000 in 1959, then was chopped down to $65,000 last year — a sore spot with him. The highest paid player in baseball currently is Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants, at $85,000.

Hamey, the Yankees' new front office boss, and Manager Ralph Houk, successor to Casey Stengel, beamed happily at Mantle's elbow as he told of his new contract and spoke enthusiastically about his 1961 aims.

Houk said he would be pleased if Mantle duplicated his 1960 feat of hitting 40 home runs, the league high, and batting in 94 runs. "Of course, if he wants to do better, that's all right with me," added the Yankee pilot.

Also over the weekend, the Leonard R. Santore, VFW Department Commander, pointed out in a communique to all of Pennsylvania's Representatives in Congress there are only two national cemeteries in Pennsylvania.

One of the cemeteries is in Philadelphia and was established in 1862 with 10,844 interred. The cemetery, Santore noted, is considered closed and there is no undeveloped acreage in the vicinity for expansion. The second cemetery is in Gettysburg, maintained by the Department of Interior and is considered in the national monument group. Congressman Walter said he is aware that there are a great many Pennsylvania servicemen who want to be buried in a national cemetery in their own state and it is apparent that additional facilities are necessary.
